Bodine Interviews Students In Hunt

"As usual, Minidoka students are most enthusiastic in continuing their education beyond high school," Thomas R. Bodine, Field Director of the National Japanese American Student Council, stated in an interview.

"I would most encouragingly advise students of 17 years of age to attend college and remain there until the army induction becomes a reality," he continued. "There are many cases where students return to their homes soon after their pre-induction physicals and spend several months in anxious waiting, when they could have been spending those months furthering their education.

Bodine assisted all students interested in student relocation during his week's stay here, and gave talks to various groups throughout the center as well as to all high school groups. He left the project on April 19.

Memoirs Staff Completing Primary Steps in Publication of Annual

Keeping the theme of the annual strictly a secret until distributing time, the Memoirs staff is now concentrating its efforts in finishing the elementary steps. With May 1 set as the deadline for turning in all copy, actual make-up and production will be done during May and distribution is scheduled for the first week in June.

With the soliciting of annual subscriptions already concluded, Business Manager Eugene Uyeke stated that his half of the job was virtually completed. Eugene Uyeke and Hiroto Zakoji were in charge of the "1000 Memoirs Subscription Drive" carried on during February.

Speaking for the whole staff, Editor Calvin Ninomiya declared that the staff is endeavoring to make the Memoirs "just what it was publicized as being." Aided financially by the Mardi Gras Carnival which was sponsored jointly by the annual staff and student body, the subscribers are promised a $2.50 value for only $1.50.

Plans which are being carried out now will include a padded cover, 120 pages (twice last year's annual), individual studio photos of the seniors, individual faculty photos, and many other features that were not included last year.

Robert W. Coombs, Memoirs advisor, disclosed the following list of editors: Kiyu Ueda, editor elect; Calvin Ninomiya, assistant editor
